The image consists of three separate photographs arranged horizontally. The first photograph on the left shows a student from behind, wearing a white shirt, looking down at a tablet device and writing on its screen with a stylus. The second photograph in the middle shows several students seated at wooden desks, facing forward towards the front of the room. They are holding papers and writing with pencils. The third photograph on the right shows students seated at desks, facing computer monitors. The screens display various software interfaces, possibly related to the lesson being taught.
